Plaintiff, the State of Colorado, upon relation of John W. Suthers, Attorney General for the State of Colorado through the undersigned counsel, states and alleges against Defendants

Raymond Makatura; Robert Makatura; Lucille Makatura; Lucille Aragon; Dorothy Gonzales; Henry Aragon; Nicholas Harper; Rita Rohleder; Michael Brian Patterson; Rocky Mountain Readers Service, Inc; Magazine/One, LLC.; Promo Readers Service, Inc; Readers Choice Service Inc; All City Circulations, Inc.; Magazine Connection, LLC; Magazine Club, LLC; Readers Source, LLC; Haragon Holdings, LLC; Haragon Holdings, Inc.; Family Publications, Inc; Increase Publications, LLC; I.N.C. & Associates; N R And Assoc. Inc.; Neighborhood Readers and Associates; National Readers and Associates; First Premier Subscriber Services, Inc; Crown Marketing, Inc.; Class Media, INC; H.J.H. Limited Liability Company; World Wide Readers Service, Inc., as follows:

INTRODUCTION

- 1. This matter is a civil law enforcement action by the State of Colorado, ex rel. John W. Suthers, under the Colorado Consumer Protection Act, §§ 6-1-101 6-1-1121, C.R.S. (2011), to preliminarily and permanently restrain and enjoin Defendants from engaging in deceptive trade practices, to recover statutory civil penalties, to obtain restitution, to disgorge unjust proceeds, and to recover attorney fees and costs.
- 2. Defendants are an extended family who, under the guise of multiple corporate names, deceive consumers into purchasing duplicative and expensive magazine subscriptions.
- 3. Certain Defendants sell magazine "packages," for which they charge up to $1,298. These Defendants contact consumers who are currently receiving magazines and pretend that they are the company that is providing the consumer's magazines. Defendants state that they are calling to lower the consumer's payments, claim they need the consumer's credit-card information to put a "privacy block" on the consumer's account, and employ multiple other tactics to trick the consumer into providing his or her credit card number and CVV code. Defendants then rush the consumer through a recorded "verification" that Defendants will later claim is an oral contract for new magazine subscriptions. Once a consumer has secured a "contract" with a consumer, Defendants improperly share consumer information with each other and redeploy their deceitful sales pitch to trick the consumer into a second or even a third new "contract" for magazine subscriptions.
- 4. Other Defendants sell renewals to single magazines by misrepresenting an association with magazine publishers. These Defendants falsely tell consumers that they will lower their subscription price and protect them against upcoming price increases. Many Defendants also use false representations to sell memberships to a "discount benefit program" that purports to save consumers money.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

I. Introduction

- 66. Defendants sell magazine subscriptions over the telephone.
- 67. Defendants take orders from consumers and pass those orders along to a third party, which is sometimes referred to as a "clearinghouse." Defendants collect money directly from consumers and enter into contracts with clearinghouses under which Defendants agree to pay for the consumers' magazines as they are ordered. In turn, the clearinghouse passes the magazine orders on to a magazine publisher or, in some cases, to another clearinghouse that has an agreement with a magazine publisher. Under the terms of Defendants' contracts with clearinghouses, Defendants are independent contractors.
- 68. Defendants have no contractual relationship with any magazine publisher and do not order magazines directly from magazine publishers. Defendants do not have any direct business relationship with any magazine publisher.

II. The Defendants' Sale of Magazine Packages

A. Overview

- 69. Defendants Rocky Mountain Readers Service, Magazine/One, Promo Readers Service, Readers Choice Service, All City Circulations, Magazine Connection, Magazine Club, Readers Source, and World Wide Readers Service (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Package Defendants") sell magazine "packages" over the telephone.
- 70. The typical package sold by the Package Defendants covers five magazines and lasts for five years, at a cost that runs from $800 to $1,298. However, most of the magazines generally run for one, two, or three years. The Package Defendants falsely represent to consumers that the consumers can replace any of the five magazines with another magazine at any time during the five years of service.
- 71. The Package Defendants bill their customers through automatic monthly withdrawals from consumers' credit card or checking accounts. Under the only payment plan offered by Defendants, the consumer pays for three or four months of "service" with each monthly payment. Thus, the payments are front-loaded to the early months of the "contract."
- 72. The Package Defendants purchase lists of consumers who subscribe to magazines. These "lead lists," as they are called, contain information about consumers, such as the consumers' address and telephone number. The more information a lead list provides about the consumers, the more valuable that list is to the Package Defendants. The Package Defendants seek out lead lists that contain the magazines the consumer is currently receiving and financial information, such as full or partial credit card or electronic debit numbers the consumer has used to purchase magazines in the past. Defendants acquire their lead lists from "lead brokers" and also share their lead lists among themselves.

B. Defendants Employ a Three-Step Process to Deceive Consumers into Oral "Contracts"

- 73. The Package Defendants' sales calls are carefully orchestrated into three steps. In the first two steps, the Package Defendants pretend that they are the consumer's current magazine provider and deceive the consumer into providing her credit card number or electronic debit information. The Package Defendants also use the first two steps to prime the consumer for the third step: a recorded "verification" that Defendants will later claim is an oral contract under which the consumer has agreed to purchase the Defendants' new magazine package.
- 74. The Package Defendants utilize a distinct script for each of the three steps. While the scripts used by each Package Defendant may differ slightly from one another, they use essentially the same script for each step.

1. The First Step – the "Sales Pitch"

- 75. The Package Defendants' first step is sometimes referred to as the "Sales Pitch." This step is completed by a low-level and relatively unskilled telemarketer. This telemarketer calls a consumer and begins by falsely telling the consumer that he is calling "with" a magazine publisher or other entity that is providing magazines to the consumer. The Package Defendants use slightly different variations of this misrepresentation. For example, one of Defendant Promo Readers Service's scripts begins, "I'm with the circulation department with the publishers that send out your magazines." Exhibit A. Defendant Magazine Connection's script begins, "I'm with the credit department with the publishers that send out your magazines. Exhibit B. The script used by Defendants Readers Choice Service and All City Circulations begins, "I'm with the Credit & Collection Department. . . . I'm working with the distributors that that send out your magazines." Exhibit C.
- 76. Next, the Package Defendants falsely tell the consumer that Defendants had been going through their "files" and noticed that the consumer's magazines were "set to terminate prematurely." See Exhibits A, B, and C. The script advises the consumer that "other companies" might be calling to sell the consumer more magazines, and twice warns the consumer not to order more magazines. Id. The script then probes the consumer for personal and financial information, such as her occupation, marital status, the credit card she uses, and whether she has a checking account. Id.

2. The Second Step – the "Capping" or "Close"

- 77. If a consumer answers the questions in the Sales Pitch, the telemarketer passes the consumer along to a more experienced and skilled telemarketer, who conducts the second step of the scam. The Package Defendants refer to the second step as the "Capping" or the "Close." The scripts used by Defendants Magazine Connection and Promo Readers, attached hereto as Exhibits D and E, respectively, are representative of the scripts used by all Package Defendants.
- 78. To begin the second step, the more experienced telemarketer, who is referred to as the "Capper," tells the consumer, "All I'm doing is checking up" on the first telemarketer. The Capper then falsely tells the consumer that she is "a preferred customer" and is already receiving magazines from the Package Defendant. See Exhibit D at M011447 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03522. Next, the Capper falsely tells the consumer that he is calling to lower the consumer's monthly payments and to let the consumer know that the Defendant will be sending the consumer its "new listing" of magazines. Id. In fact, the Capper is calling the consumer to sell him or her a brand new magazine package.
- 79. Next, the Capper begins the process of tricking the consumer into disclosing her financial information. The script reads, "Now you are going through your credit card, is that a regular card or a debit card?" Exhibit D at M011447 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03522. For consumers who are paying with their credit card, the script states, "Starting today you'll pay no interest, or finance charges, and this is no longer going to affect your balance." For consumers who are paying with their debit card, the script states, "Starting today we[']re doing something special for you, we[']re going to send out a reminder card 10 days before its deducted so you don't forget." Exhibit D at M011447-48 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03522-23. Both of these statements falsely imply a pre-existing relationship between the consumer and the Package Defendant.

- 80. The Capper then tells the consumer that the Package Defendant is going to place a "privacy block" on the consumer's account, because "we've been getting a lot of phone calls from our customers stating that they're getting calls from other companies trying to get them to buy more." Exhibit D at M011448 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03523. The Capper then asks the consumer to provide her credit card number, expiration date, and three-digit Card Verification Value ("CVV") number located on the back of the consumer's credit card. The Capper tells the consumer that he will use the CVV number "to put a privacy block on there for you." Id.
- 81. The Package Defendants do not place a "privacy block" on any consumer's account. Rather, Defendants use the CVV number to begin making charges to the consumer's credit card or debit account.
- 82. The Package Defendants know that the consumers they are calling are frequently on other companies' lead lists, including the lists of other Package Defendants. Thus, they know that the consumers are likely receiving multiple calls from magazine telemarketers. In this context, Defendants' "privacy block" stratagem is particularly effective.
- 83. Only after the Capper secures a consumer's financial information is there any discussion about specific magazines. This discussion begins with the Capper's attempt to figure out what magazines the consumer is already receiving. The script reads, "Now on your magazines, have you received your _____? The publishers wanted to make sure you are receiving [everything] you're supposed to. Off the top of your head which titles have you seen come through the door so far?" Exhibit D at M011449 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03523. The script then instructs the Capper to "give magazines." Id.
- 84. Next, the Capper falsely tells the consumer that "the publishers are handling the billing" for the package in a manner that requires the consumer to pay for multiple months with each monthly payment. Exhibit D at M011449 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03524. However, it is not the publishers, but the Package Defendants, who handle the billing in this manner.
- 85. After explaining how "the publishers are handling the billing," the Capper states, "So I just saved you a couple hundred dollars." Exhibit D at M011449 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03524. This statement is false and misleading on a number of levels. First, the Capper is not "taking [the consumer's] payments down," as he has stated, but is instead signing the consumer up for a brand new magazine package and a roughly $1,000 "contract." Further, on its face, the script's payment plan does not create any reduction in the price to be paid by the consumer. In fact, it increases the consumer's "monthly payment" and total cost, as that payment and cost was described at the beginning of the second step, see Exhibit D at M011447 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03522. Also, the prices charged by the Package Defendants are far higher than a consumer could receive by ordering magazines directly from the publisher.

3. The Third Step – The Recorded "Verification"

- 86. Having convinced the consumer that he was calling simply to inform her of the "new listing," lower her monthly payments, and place a "privacy block" on her account, the Capper then moves on to the third step the recorded "verification." The Package Defendants will later claim that this "verification" is an oral contract that obligates the consumer to pay up to $1,298 for magazines.
- 87. The Package Defendants employ many tactics in order to get a "clean" verification. For example, some Cappers inform consumers that they can't ask questions during the verification because the verification must be limited to a certain amount of time (i.e. 45 seconds). Cappers can also start and stop the recorder when necessary to make false representations to the consumer off tape. The Package Defendants also "redo" unsatisfactory verifications by calling consumers back and convincing them to "verify" the order again.

C. Other Deceptive Practices of the Package Defendants

- 88. Once a consumer is on one of the Package Defendants' call lists, the Package Defendants make repeated calls to the consumer, sometimes calling the consumer several times per day. Defendants' phone calls to consumers are frequently harassing and intimidating in nature.
- 89. The Package Defendants also falsely state and imply to consumers that all five magazines in the five-magazine package will run for five years. However, in most cases, only one or two of the magazine subscriptions run for five years. The remaining magazines run for a shorter time period, usually one to two years.
- 90. The Package Defendants falsely and misleadingly state and imply that the consumer's monthly payments will be lower than they actually will be.
- 91. The Package Defendants also claim that their "service" is guaranteed. However, the Package Defendants' contracts with their clearinghouses clearly inform them that the continued availability of any magazine cannot be guaranteed. Further, Defendants fail to conspicuously disclose to consumers the nature and extent of their guarantee, any material conditions or limitations they have imposed in the guarantee, and the manner in which they would make good on their guarantee.
- 92. The Package Defendants' scripts are designed to allow them to collect as much money as possible before the consumer discovers that he or she has been signed up for a new "contract." In the second step of the sales process, right after telling the consumer that he is lowering the consumer's monthly payment, the Capper tells the consumer that from "now on your monthly amount will show up separately" on the consumer's credit card statement. ExhibitDescription at M011448 and Exhibit E at MAG-PRSb:03522. This is the Package Defendants' explanation for why new charges will appear on the consumer's credit-card statement even though the consumer did not want a new magazine package. Also, as noted above, the Package Defendants falsely state that the "way the publishers handle the billing" requires that payments be front loaded – each of the consumer's monthly payments pays for three or four years of "service."

- 93. The Package Defendants do not always order the magazines they tell the consumer they will order.
- 94. The Package Defendants sometimes sell different packages, such as four- or six-magazine packages and sometimes make minor adjustments to the prices they quote customers. The Package Defendants have always made certain core categories of misrepresentations to consumers, including false statements designed to make the consumer believe that the Package Defendants are currently providing magazines to the consumer, false statements about purported business relationships with magazine publishers and distributors, and false and misleading statements relating to price reductions and the prices they are offering.
- 95. One script used by Defendant Promo Readers Service informs consumers, "Now, you do have a free gift coming to you- It's $1,000 in grocery coupons." Exhibit A.
- 96. No consumer ever receives a free gift of $1,000 in grocery coupons. Instead, consumers are sent a mailing containing "(100) one hundred $10.00 Grocery Coupon Certificates." In order to receive a $10 grocery coupon, the consumer must pay $2 and fill out and return a complex "order form," which includes 48 separate boxes that must be completed in their entirety and without error. No more than one "order form" can be received in any one mailing. Thus, in order to receive $1,000 in grocery coupons, the consumer would have to fill out and submit without error 100 separate "order forms" and make 100 separate payments of $2. None of this is disclosed to consumers at the time of sale. Exhibit F.

D. Defendants Profit By Offering an "Early Buyout" of Their Contracts

- 97. After finalizing the recorded "verification," the Package Defendants begin to make monthly withdrawals from the consumer's credit card or checking account.
- 98. The Package Defendants inform consumers that cancellation is not possible and that the consumers are contractually obligated for the full amount of the package.
- 99. As part of their regular business practice, the Package Defendants offer consumers the option of paying off their account in full, or at a discounted price of several hundred dollars. This option is highly profitable for the Package Defendants. Also, even though they have previously told consumers they cannot cancel, the Package Defendants tell consumers who call to complaint that they can cancel for an expensive cancelation fee.

E. After Signing a Consumer Up for One "Contract," the Package Defendants Call the Consumer Again and Redeploy Their Deceptive Scripts

- 100. Within one to six months after signing a consumer up for a package, the Package Defendants contact the consumer again and attempt to add another four or five year "package" to the consumer's account. Some Defendants refer to these calls as "add ons."
- 101. The Package Defendants use the same scripts for "add-ons" as they do for their initial sales, including the representations that the Defendant is affiliated or associated with the publisher or other company that is providing magazines to the consumer, the advice not to order any more magazines, the phony "price reductions," and the assurance that Defendants will put a "privacy block" on the consumer's account.
- 102. After a successful "add-on" call, the Package Defendants are collecting payments on two "contracts," each worth approximately $1,000.
- 103. Consumers who have been signed up for "add ons" sometimes notice the double billing on their credit card or bank statements. When consumers call to complain, they are told that they have two binding contracts and are offered the option of paying one or both of the accounts in full, sometimes at a discounted price of several hundred dollars for each "contract."

F. The Package Defendants Perpetuate Their Scheme By Sharing Their Customer Lists With Each Other

- 104. The Package Defendants use their telemarketing calls to gather detailed information about consumers. The information that Defendants gather includes the consumer's name, date of birth, bank and credit card account numbers, partial or complete social security numbers, employment status, employer name, employer phone number, income, marital status, whether the consumer owns or rents his/her residence, and how long the consumer has been living at his/her current residence.
- 105. Once they have gathered this valuable information, the Package Defendants sell and otherwise share this information among themselves and others. The Package Defendants then call one another's customers and attempt to sign them up for more magazine "contracts," using the same scripts that are described above.
- 106. The Package Defendants' sharing of detailed customer information facilitates their tactic of leading consumers to believe that Defendants are currently providing magazines to the consumers and that the consumers already owe Defendants money.

G. Defendant World Wide Readers Service

- 107. Defendant World Wide Readers Service differs slightly from the other Package Defendants. World Wide Readers Service primarily purchases subscription orders from Defendants Magazine Connection and Magazine Club, and has purchased subscription orders from Defendant Readers Source in the past.
- 108. When World Wide Readers Service purchases an order, it purchases the right to collect all payments due on that order. It also generates a letter that purports to confirm the customer's order.
- 109. Defendant Michael Brian Patterson, President and owner of World Wide Readers Service, has reviewed the scripts used at Magazine Connection and Magazine Club and understands that they obtain their orders by deceiving customers into thinking they are updating existing magazine subscriptions rather than purchasing new ones.
- 110. Defendant World Wide Readers Service cooperates in and profits from this deception. In both 2009 and 2010, World Wide Readers Service grossed just over a million dollars.
- 111. Once World Wide Readers Service has purchased an order, it aggressively collects on the order and insists that the consumer knowingly signed up for a new contract. If the consumer refuses to pay or disputes the charge with their credit card company, World Wide Readers Service sends the customer to a collections agency and demands the full value of the "contract."
- 112. Additionally, even though World Wide Readers Service states in its confirmation letter that the customer may cancel within seven days of receipt of the letter, numerous customers have attempted to cancel their subscription within the allotted time period only to be continually charged by World Wide Service.
- 113. World Wide Readers Service also books its own orders and sells the same or similar packages sold by the other Package Defendants. In the verifications for these orders, the capper does not advise the consumer that they are entering into a new contract for magazines.
- 114. Defendant World Wide Readers Service employs the same deceptive tactics as the other Package Defendants in securing orders including, but not limited to, acting as though World Wide Readers Service is merely calling to discuss an existing subscription rather than securing a new one and falsely telling the consumer that they are bringing the consumer's payments down rather than signing her up for more payments.

III. Defendants' Sale of Renewals to Single Magazines

115. A second layer to Defendants' scam is the sale of renewal subscriptions to single magazines. Defendants Family Publications, Increase Publications, I.N.C. & Associates, N R And Assoc., Neighborhood Readers and Associates, National Readers and Associates, Crown Marketing, Class Media, First Premier, Rocky Mountain Readers Service, and Magazine/One¹ (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Single-Magazine Defendants") purchase lead lists containing the names and telephone numbers of consumers who subscribe to certain magazines. They then call these consumers and attempt to sell renewals to the magazines. The Single-Magazine Defendants attempt to sell renewals to several dozen different magazines.

- 116. While the Single-Magazine Defendants use many different corporate names, their operations are centrally controlled at 4100 Wadsworth Blvd., Wheat Ridge, Colorado 80033. Some Single-Magazine Defendants operate out of 4100 Wadsworth Blvd., and others house telemarketers in other office buildings. Defendants' employees refer to the building at 4100 Wadsworth Blvd. as "corporate."
- 117. The Single-Magazine Defendants' business operations are controlled by Defendants Raymond Makatura, Robert Makatura, Nicholas Harper, and Rita Rohleder.

A. The Single-Magazine Defendants' Deceptive Sales Pitch

- 118. The Single-Magazine Defendants' sales pitch contains multiple false statements that are designed to lead the consumer to believe that the Defendant has a direct business association with the magazine publisher currently sending out the consumer's magazines.
- 119. The Single-Magazine Defendants use identical scripts. The Single-Magazine Defendants' sales script is attached hereto as Exhibit G. The script begins, "This is ____ with Magazine Services, calling in regard to your ____ magazine." Id. The script does not identify the actual corporate name of the Defendant, i.e., Family Publications or Magazine/One.
- 120. Next, the Single-Magazine Defendants falsely state, "I see you're receiving your issues on time and in good condition." However, Defendants have no knowledge of whether any consumer is receiving any issues, or whether any issues the consumer is receiving are arriving on time or in good condition.
 - 121. Then, the Single-Magazine Defendants falsely state:

The publishers recently added you to a preferred	customer	file.
This authorizes us to drop the price of your next	rei	newal by
.50 cents a copy, all the way down to just	an issue.	Now
that's 70% off the regular rate.

Exhibit G.

- 122. There is no "preferred customer file." No publisher has ever informed the Single-Magazine Defendants of any "preferred customer file," much less any "recent add[itions]" to such a file. Instead, Defendants procure their call lists from lead brokers third parties who sell consumer information. However, the Single-Magazine Defendants have consistently made the above representation to every consumer for years, and for every magazine they are selling.
- 123. The false representation about "drop[ping] the price of your next _____ renewal by .50 cents a copy" has also been made by the Single-Magazine Defendants to every consumer the Single-Magazine Defendants call. Again, the Single-Magazine Defendants make this representation regardless of which magazine they are selling and what the consumer's current subscription rate is. The same is true of the representation that Defendants' offered renewal price is "70% off the regular rate." In fact, the Single-Magazine Defendants have no way of knowing if either of these statements is true.
- 124. The script used by all of Single-Magazine Defendants provides the same phony "order number" J156 to every consumer. Exhibit G.
- 125. The Single-Magazine Defendants also provide their sales force with written "Rebuttals" answers to certain questions that consumers frequently ask. The Single-Magazine Defendants' "Rebuttals" are attached hereto as Exhibit H.
- 126. The first "Rebuttal" is the Single Magazine Defendant's response to a consumer who says, "I'm on the Federal Do Not Call List!" Exhibit H. In an attempt to dissuade consumers from reporting Defendants for do-not-call violations, the Rebuttal falsely tells the consumer that the Single-Magazine Defendant is "contracted out" by the magazine they are trying to sell. Thus, the Rebuttal leads the consumer to believe that Defendants already have a business relationship with them. The Rebuttal also makes false and misleading statements about a "preferred rate" for the consumer and impending increases in subscription prices. Id.
- 127. The second Rebuttal is for the question, "Are you calling from the Publisher?" This Rebuttal conceals the corporate identity of the Single-Magazine Defendant, stating instead that "I work with the Magazine Services." Exhibit H. This Rebuttal also falsely tells the consumer, "We are contracted to take care of their preferred account renewals, before they raise the prices on the magazine." The Single-Magazine Defendants are not "contracted out" by anyone much less magazine publishers to "take care of their preferred account renewals." As with the representations about discounts from the "regular rate," this Rebuttal's false and misleading statement about increases to the subscription rate has been made to every consumer for several years, regardless of which magazine Defendants are selling on any given day.
- 128. Defendants Robert Makatura, Raymond Makatura, and Nick Harper emphasize to their employees that, if a consumer asks the name of the company, they are to respond, "Magazine Services."

- 129. The Rebuttal to the question, "When does my current service expire," again falsely and misleadingly tells the consumer of an upcoming increase of the subscription price, and tells the consumer that the Single-Magazine Defendants will "[l]ock[] you into the discounted rate." Exhibit H.
- 130. False statements about an association with publishers and false and misleading statements about discounted rates and impending price increases are hallmarks of the Single-Magazine Defendants' sales pitch. For instance, the Attorney General's review of audio recordings produced by the Single Magazine Defendants shows that they regularly make false references to "promotional periods" that the consumer should take advantage of, when no such "promotional period" exists.
- 131. The Single-Magazine Defendants also permit and encourage their employees to make misrepresentations beyond those found on the scripts. For example, employees of these Defendants regularly tell consumers that Defendants are the publishers of the magazine Defendants are trying to sell. One salesperson earned a reputation around the company for her tactics in selling Rachel Ray magazine. This salesperson would tell consumers that she just saw Rachel Ray in the office.
- 132. The Single-Magazine Defendants also make the false and misleading statements with regard to "$100 Rebate Card" and "$1,000 in grocery coupons" that are described herein in ¶¶ 95-96 and 150-154. The Single-Magazine Defendants, as well as Defendants Promo Readers Service and All City Circulations, make such misrepresentations in connection with the sale of a "consumer discount program" that is operated and controlled by Defendants Raymond Makatura, Robert Makatura, and Rita Rohleder.

B. The Single-Magazine Defendants Develop "Lead Lists" to be Used by the Package Defendants

- 133. The Single-Magazine Defendants maintain information about every consumer they sell magazines to. Such information includes the magazine(s) the consumer is receiving and the consumer's financial information.
- 134. The Single-Magazine Defendants compile their customer information and sell or otherwise share it with the Package Defendants. For example, Defendant Robert Makatura, who controls the Single-Magazine Defendants, provides leads to be used by Package Defendant Promo Readers Service, which Robert Makatura co-owns with his wife, Defendant Lucille Makatura. Robert Makatura also provides consumer information to his stepdaughters, Defendants Lucille Aragon and Dorothy Gonzales, for use by Package Defendants Readers Choice Service and All City Circulations, and his stepson, Defendant Henry Aragon, for use by Package Defendants Magazine Connection, Magazine Club, and Readers Source.

IV. Defendants Create a Sales Environment that Encourages Their Employees to Make False and Misleading Statements

- 135. In addition to using misleading scripts to sell magazines, Defendants deliberately create a sales atmosphere that encourages their employees to make other misrepresentations beyond those that are found on their scripts.
- 136. Defendants deliberately hire people with criminal records and who must remain employed as a condition of probation. Defendants have a sales quota and inform their telemarketers that they will be fired if they do not meet the quota. Defendants regularly fire telemarketers who do not meet the sales quota.
 - 137. Defendants' telemarketers earn a commission or bonus for every successful sale.
- 138. As a result of this atmosphere, Defendants' sales personnel will say and do anything to make a sale, and frequently make false representations about price and the payment plan that are not on Defendants' script.
- 139. While the owners and operators of Defendants instruct their employees to stay "on script," they know that their employees diverge from the scripts and reward employees who do so with commissions and bonuses for their sales.

V. Defendants Conceal and Misrepresent Their True Identity

- 140. Defendants purposely conceal their identities from consumers during phone calls and in credit-card billing statements.
- 141. Employees of Defendants Magazine/One, Rocky Mountain Readers Service, and the Single-Magazine Defendants are instructed to identify the company as "Magazine Services."
- 142. Defendants Readers Choice Service and All City Circulations frequently identify themselves to consumers as "Readers Services."
- 143. Defendant Promo Readers Service also sometimes identifies itself to consumers as "Readers Service" or "Readers Services."
- 144. The scripts of Defendants Magazine Connection, Magazine Club, Readers Source, Promo Readers Service, and Magazine/One refer consumers to the same phony "confirmation number" for their orders: L-31. Defendants Readers Choice Service, Magazine Connection, Magazine Club, and Readers Source send collection letters to consumers that are signed by the same fake person, "Verdina Maxwell."
- 145. Once they are billing a consumer, Defendants employ multiple techniques to keep consumers in the dark about which company is billing them. For instance, Package Defendants have set up their credit-card merchant accounts so that payments debited by Defendants do not state Defendants' name, but rather state, "Magazines," or some other generic term that does not identify the Defendant.

146. Moreover, each Package Defendant's corporate name is generic and easily confused with the names of other Defendants and other companies that sell similar magazine-subscription packages. This furthers the Defendants' overall strategy of misleading consumers into believing that they have an existing business relationship with Defendants.

VI. Defendants' New Scripts

- 147. In December 2010, two Attorney General investigators visited the places of business of Defendants Promo Readers Service, All City Circulations, World Wide Readers Service, and I.N.C. During these visits, the investigators requested copies of Defendants' sales scripts, which some Defendants provided to the investigators.
- 148. The Attorney General subsequently served subpoenas on these Defendants. In an attempt to mislead the Attorney General and cover up their illegal conduct, Defendants Magazine/One, Readers Choice Service, All City Circulations, Promo Readers Service, and all of the Single-Magazine Defendants produced scripts that had not been in use prior to the investigators' visit. Defendant World Wide Readers Service withheld its true script and produced a script that makes no sense in the context of what it sells.
- 149. However, inadvertent recordings of the Defendants' sales and capping calls as well as testimony from the Defendants' current and former employees confirm that, prior to the Attorney General's investigation, the scripts in use at these companies were the ones detailed in Sections II and III above. This is further confirmed by the fact that employees of Package Defendants Readers Choice Service, All City Circulations, and Readers Source regularly travelled to the office of Package Defendant Promo Readers Service so that the "Cappers" from Promo Readers Service could train them on the deceptive stratagems described in Section II, above.

A. The New Scripts of Certain Package Defendants

- 150. Defendants' newly created scripts still contain false and misleading representations. The newly created scripts of Package Defendants Magazine/One, Promo Readers Service and All City Circulations tell consumers, "As our way of saying 'hello' . . . we are going to send you a $100 rebate card that you can spend at stores like Walmart, Sears, and Target." Defendant Magazine/One also makes this offer on its Website.
- 151. Defendants Magazine/One, Promo Readers Service and All City Circulations do not send consumers a $100 rebate card that can be spent at stores. In fact, no consumer ever receives any money or any rebates for any store.

- 152. Instead, these Defendants send consumers a form that they must fill out and return to Defendants in order to receive ten "Redemption Vouchers." The Redemption Vouchers are sent out by Consumer Network of America, the "consumer discount program" owned and controlled by Defendants Robert and Raymond Makatura and Rita Rohleder. According to the instructions that accompany the Redemption Vouchers, see Exhibit I, the program works as follows. Each Redemption Voucher permits the consumer to receive a $10 gift card for every $100 spent on non-grocery items. Each Redemption Voucher is only valid for one specific month chosen by Defendants, i.e., July 2011. Defendants date the Vouchers for ten consecutive months, i.e., July 2011 April 2012. Id. at 7836.
- 153. For example, if a consumer spent at least $100 on non-grocery items at Target in July 2011, she could submit her receipts along with the July 2011 Redemption Voucher to receive a $10 gift card to Target. If the consumer spent another $100 on non-grocery items in August 2011, the consumer could submit those receipts along with the August 2011 Redemption Voucher, and be entitled to another $10 gift card. However, if the consumer failed to spend $100 on non-grocery items in July or August, the consumer would forfeit the $10 gift card for that month.
- 154. In other words, Defendants offer the possibility of receiving ten $10 gift cards. However, in order to receive these gift cards, the consumer would have to spend at least $100 on non-grocery items, ten times, in ten consecutive months chosen by Defendants and fill out the Voucher and submit their receipts for each month to the satisfaction of Defendants. None of this is disclosed to consumers at the time of sale.
- 155. The newly created scripts of Defendants Magazine/One, Promo Readers Service, and All City Circulations falsely tell consumers that all five magazines in the package run for five years, when in fact most of them run for fewer years.

B. The Single-Magazine Defendants' New Scripts

- 156. The Single-Magazine Defendants' newly created scripts still contain false and misleading statements. The scripts falsely state, "I see you're receiving your issues on time and in good condition," when Defendants have no knowledge of whether any consumer is receiving any issues, or whether any issues the consumer is receiving are arriving on time or in good condition.
- 157. The scripts falsely state that the Defendants "added [the consumer] to a preferred customer file" and that "this authorizes us to drop the price of your next renewal by .50 cents a copy Now that's 70% off the regular rate."
- 158. Even if Defendants have used the scripts described in this Section VI, they are still selling magazines to consumers using false and misleading statements.

1. I'm on the Federal Do Not Call List!

Well, (MR. / MRS. LAST NAME) you have a current subscription with (MAGAZINE TITLE) and we are contracted out to take care of their renewals, and you are a PREFERRED CUSTOMER with them. Now, the reason we're calling is to let you know of a preferred rate we have for you, before the publishers raise their rates!! If you want I will add you to our Do Not Call list, and remove you from our calling list.

(GET A RESPONSE BEFORE GOING FURTHER.)

2. Are you calling from the Publisher?

No, (MR. / MRS LAST NAME) I work with the Magazine Services. We are contracted to take care of their preferred account renewals, before they see the prices on the magazine.

(RETURN TO PRESENTATION)

3. How do I pay for this? / Just send it in the mail.

Well, (MR. / MRS LAST NAME) You can pay for that any way you would like, CREDIT CARD OR CHECK. A Verifier will jump on the phone in a second, and they will take care of that for you, OKAY!!!

(GET A RESPONSE BEFORE GOING FURTHER.)

4. When does my current service expire?

Well, (MR. / MRS LAST NAME) the expiration date is found on the mailing label of each issue you receive. The reason I am calling, is that service would expire after the Publisher have raised the price. These will start when you current service ends. Locking you into the discounted rate, OKAY!!!
